Integratus* – “Ongoing Response” Call for Manuscript Submissions Professional Ethics

Integratus, the official journal of the Catholic Psychotherapy Association, is pleased to announce an “Ongoing Response” call for manuscript submissions focused on Professional Ethics. This special call for manuscript submissions aims to highlight the development and publication of the Catholic Psychotherapy Association’s first professional CPA Ethics Code.

Integratus is interested in manuscripts that provide insightful commentary about the new ethics code; describes unique ethical dilemmas and ethical decision-making models at the intersections of Catholic thought and professional practice; future directions of research; and identification of lingering ethical questions and debates for the field to address (see June 2024 issue: Kugelmann, 2024; Zepeda & Loredó, 2024a; Sodergren 2024; Zepeda & Loredó, 2024b).

Manuscript Submission details

1. Manuscript submissions may be...
  - a. Clinical, research, professional situations that apply the ethical code in clinical practice and/or have unique ethical considerations, including how those considerations were addressed and resolved.
  - b. Analytic commentary about professional ethics in the mental health professions in relation to the Catholic Psychotherapy Association’s new ethical code.
  - c. Literature review that provides an empirical overview, clinical implications, limitations, and future directions about professional ethics.
  - d. Professional debate about ethics, application of the code, considerations and implications that are unresolved, ambiguous, and/or require further development.
2. Submitted manuscripts will go through the standard review process.
3. Manuscripts selected for publication will reflect the general standards of Integratus as well as fit with this special call.
